This statement applies to DNV Group AS, to all subsidiaries globally (including but not limited to UK subsidiaries which are DNV Services UK Limited, DNV Business Assurance Services UK Ltd., DNV UK Limited, DNV Business Assurance UK Ltd., Noble Denton Consultants Limited, GL Industrial Services UK Limited, Garrad Hassan & Partners Limited, DNV Inspection UK Ltd, DNV Imatis UK Ltd, Applied Risk UK Ltd).

Our Supply Chains

DNV is a professional services company, serving the maritime, energy, business assurance and digital sectors. We divide our suppliers into two main groups:

Direct suppliers that provide services that are part of our deliveries to customers. These suppliers are for example subcontractors that provide technical expertise or part of the scope we deliver to our clients or conduct management-system certifications on our behalf.

Indirect suppliers that provide goods and services that are related to our overall business activities such as facility management of our office buildings, travel, hardware and software, financial services, insurance, and office supplies.

The five largest categories by expenditure are: subcontractors; travel; office and real estate expenses; IT and tele communications; and HR services. We procure most services and products locally. The responsibility for governing documents, strategies, processes, tools and global procurement projects is organized centrally in our Global Shared Services unit.

POLICIES ON MODERN SLAVERY AND HUMAN TRAFFICKING

DNV has been a signatory to the UN Global Compact since 2003 and sees the integration of the ten principles on human rights, labour standards, environment and anti-corruption as critical for capturing long-term value. We are committed to ensuring that these principles are reflected in our business strategy, day-to-day operations, organisational culture, sphere of influence and relationships with suppliers. DNV also reports according to the GRI Universal standards, and a third party conducts a limited assurance of our annual report. The annual report is available on www.dnv.com.

We are as part of this, committed to ensuring that there is no modern slavery or human trafficking taking place in any part of our business or our supply chains.

Our Business

The main principles and rules governing our actions within our business are set out in the DNV Code of Conduct. The Code of Conduct applies to all categories of employees, including but not limited to; temporary employees, contractors acting on our behalf and anyone holding a position of trust in the DNV Group. The principles in the Code also apply to intermediaries and partners. The Code of Conduct highlights that we are a signatory to the UN Global Compact and committed to the ten principles on human rights, labour standards, environment and anti-corruption. We have also published a Statement on human rights. As Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking are covered within the Code of Conduct, we do not have a separate specific policy about these topics.

The Code of Conduct is communicated globally to all employees on commencing their employment and employees are reminded to adhere to these principles in their daily business operations. Breaches of the Code of Conduct may result in disciplinary procedures, including but not limited to termination of employment or contract, as well as potential legal proceedings. The DNV Code of Conduct is publicly available on www.dnv.com.

Our Supply Chains

Our commitment to corporate sustainability extends to our relationships with indirect and direct suppliers. Our Supplier Code of Conduct outlines our expectations for suppliers and is aligned with the UN Global Compact's ten principles on human rights, labour standards, environment and anti-corruption, including the principles set out in the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights, the International Labour Organization's (ILO) Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work and the OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises. It details requirements around the right to freely chosen labour, no use of child labour, protection of young workers, fair wages, decent working hours, non-discrimination and humane treatment.

The DNV Group Supplier Code of Conduct is made up of a Supplier Code of Conduct cover page with the following appendices:

- Supplier Code of Conduct;
- Guideline document on the interpretation of the Supplier Code of Conduct; and
- Supplier Declaration.

Further instructions that inter alia support sustainability principles are given in management-system documents such as the instructions for procurement, instructions for contracting subcontractors and intermediaries, and real-estate management policy. The DNV Supplier Code of Conduct is available on www.dnv.com.

RISK ASSESSMENT

As a business providing professional, technical services delivered by highly skilled experts, we consider the risks of modern slavery and human trafficking risks to be low in our business. We also consider the risk to be low for our direct suppliers that mainly provide highly skilled services as part of our deliveries to our customers. We believe that there may be a higher risk of modern slavery amongst our indirect suppliers, particularly where the workforce is lower skilled and/or receives lower wages, such as for ICT manufacturing suppliers. New indirect suppliers shall be screened for inherent sustainability risks.

Where needed, suppliers are requested to conduct self-assessments. In respect of existing suppliers, we undertake a risk assessment and where the supplier is deemed high risk, we request that they sign a declaration on the terms outlined above.

SUPPLIER DUE DILIGENCE

For new indirect suppliers, we conduct initial screening to identify human rights and labour rights risks related to the supplier in question. Employees assess whether suppliers operate in line with the DNV Supplier Code of Conduct and can require a supplier self-assessment as a further measure where risks are identified.

The due diligence we carry out, when selecting suppliers, considers the individual risks each supplier poses to our business and implements additional measures for those suppliers presenting higher risks.

We also ask our largest suppliers to adopt or establish a management system which includes a risk assessment and management process covering legal compliance, labour practice and ethical risks associated with the supplier's operations.

In 2022, 11 selected suppliers globally were audited against the Supplier Code of Conduct and their adherence to it.

TRAINING

Regional procurement managers are training their respective teams in the new and updated policies and procedures for procurement.

An e-learning for suppliers is available. It was set up to emphasize on DNV's standards on sustainability and ethical behaviour. The training includes interactive exercises and requires suppliers to confirm they understand and commit to comply with DNV's expectations. Business areas have applied a risk-based approach to identify the suppliers required to take the training.

REPORTING OF MISCONDUCT

The DNV Group has established multiple channels for employees and indirect and direct suppliers to report any breach, violations and/or concerns relating to DNV's Code of Conduct, corporate policies, instructions, applicable laws and regulations and/or the Supplier Code of Conduct. Employees and suppliers are encouraged to report possible violations to DNV's reporting channels, including the line managers, DNV's internal Ombudsman, the Group Compliance Officer or DNV's web-based Integrity Hotline. They can do so without fear of retaliation. Suppliers are encouraged to report to DNV's internal Ombudsman, Compliance Officer or DNV's Integrity Hotline. More information, including how we facilitate anonymous whistleblowing, can be found on www.dnv.com.

FUTURE STEPS

Following a review of the effectiveness of the steps we have taken this year in our Global Shared Services unit Real Estate Management & Procurement to ensure that there is no modern slavery and/or human trafficking taking place in our supply chains, we intend to take the following further and ongoing steps:

- (a) Monitor effectiveness in combatting modern slavery and human trafficking

We will be continuing to audit our key suppliers also to ensure that modern slavery and human trafficking is not taking place in our supply chain. Based on our findings, appropriate measures will be taken if needed. Additional audits of suppliers are planned and will be carried out in 2023.

- (b) Digitalizing the contract and supplier management tool

We have implemented the contract management tool Synergi Life for indirect suppliers to digitalize the storing of third-party contractual documents. This will improve contractual compliance and facilitate supplier consolidation. Looking into 2023, we will explore the possibility of carrying out supplier risk assessment via Synergi Life, to automate the supplier risk assessment process.

APPROVAL

This statement is made further to section 54(1) of the United Kingdom's Modern Slavery Act 2015 and constitutes the DNV UK's slavery and human trafficking statement for the financial year ending 31/12/2022.
